

REQUEST FOR A LICENCE TO USE GHANAIAN JUDGMENTS IN A COMMERCIAL LEGAL-RESEARCH SERVICE

The Judicial Secretary
Judicial Service of Ghana
P.O. Box GP 119, Accra

Dear Sir/Madam,

I write on behalf of [ORGANISATION], which operates "Juris Kai", a legal-research service for Ghanaian law. I want to be transparent from the outset: Juris Kai is a commercial service (users pay a subscription), so we are seeking a licence that permits commercial use.

We wish to ensure our use of your judgments is fully lawful and approved. We respectfully request a written licence (or terms of use) permitting us to:

1. obtain electronic copies of judgments in the e-Judgment system (or an agreed subset), on a one-off and ongoing basis;
2. store those judgments in a private, access-controlled database;
3. use them, including in an AI retrieval-augmented generation (RAG) system, to answer legal questions for our subscribers;
4. reproduce short verbatim quotations from judgments in answers, with attribution to the court and the Judicial Service;
5. use the material for commercial purposes.

We accept that:

- the judgments remain subject to any conditions the courts or the Judicial Service impose;
- we will not re-publish the judgments in bulk as a competing database, sell them as a standalone product, or misrepresent them;
- we will comply with any redaction/privacy conditions you specify and will not use the material for any purpose you prohibit.

We would welcome guidance on any fee, form or agreement required, including a commercial licence fee. We are happy to provide further information or meet your technical team.

Yours faithfully,
